Hello!

In my junior year of college I decided to change my major from architecture to history because I realized that I did not enjoy learning architecture, nor was I particularly gifted in it.

I decided to study history because I had always enjoyed learning history and wanted to go into teaching. In changing my major I was changing my career path to teaching.

I wanted to teach because I had some experience in serving Children's Ministry as a pre-school teacher. I also gained more experience in teaching through working at a tutoring program, in which I learned how to work with larger groups of students.

I was interested in working at a Christian school because I wanted the opportunity to share the gospel to students and believed that a Christian school would provide the best opportunity to do so.
